Summer Workshops

Registrations will be accepted up to and including July 3 for the second summer theatre workshop, to be held at the Phoenix Theatre July 3 through August 19. Junior and senior classes in acting, stagecraft and design are offered. Courses culminate in a production of The Caucasian Chalk Circle, adapted by Eric Bentley from the Brecht original. The workshop staff will hold an orientation meeting at the theatre July 3 at 9:30 a.m. For information, call 477-4821.

La Maison Française, directed by MR. CLAUDE E. ROCHETTE, who returns from completing doctoral studies at the University of Strasbourg, commences its third summer session on July 3. Of the 46 participants, including one each from California, Washington, Oregon, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and three from Alberta, 19 are in residence at Margaret Newton Hall. Six instructors and monitors have arrived from Quebec City. On n'y parle que le français!

The University of Victoria's first summer workshop in chamber music starts July 12 under the directorship of Robin Wood. The workshop will bring students and professionals together for chamber music in ideal surroundings. The workshop will consist of coaching and rehearsal sessions under the guidance of a faculty headed by players of international renown. Students will also have the opportunity to perform in concert. Robin Wood is director of the Victoria School of Music, and was formerly professor of piano at the Royal Academy of Music, London.

Things To Do

Summer sportsmen are invited to try their hand at softball or cricket on the Gordon Head playing fields. Softball teams meet Tuesdays at 7:00 p.m., and can generally use unexpected players. For information, call DR. JOHN McINERNEY at local 313. Cricketers -- or those who wish they were -- wield the willow every Thursday at 6:45 p.m. Play is casual, so recruits need no previous experience -- nor even a pair of white flannels. CLIVE YOXALL, at 416, is the man to call.

The summer session office has arranged two Saturday bus tours of historic sites in Greater Victoria, guided by writer-historian James K. Nesbitt. They will leave the Victoria Art Gallery, 1040 Moss St., at 2:00 p.m. July 15 and 29. Included will be stops at Craigflower Manor, Point Ellice House, and Craigdarroch Castle, and tea at the gallery at 4:15. The $3 cost will cover all normal admission charges en route. For tickets and information, call the Student Union Building, local 359.

Again this summer, the department of anthropology and sociology and the pacific region of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews will jointly sponsor a film discussion series dealing with human relations. The films will be shown in the Education-Arts lecture theatre, Room 144, on successive Wednesday noons at 12:30 p.m.

Faculty News
